

TheFrenchKiss – these words are already mouth watering but just wait until you see their designs!

TheFrenchKiss is a Paris-based company founded in 2011 by Agathe Stirer.

And, just so you know, its origins are as sexy as its concept. A few years ago, during one of those nights where everything spins and the best of memories are made, Agathe embraced, in euphoria, both the moment and her friend Pablo. On his white t-shirt and in lieu of the heart, she planted the shape of her lips in bright red lipstick.

Soon after registering the trademark, Agathe quit her white-collar job and travelled the world in search of a spiritual awakening. Upon her return, she knew she had to pull her tongue out for what she believed in. TheFrenchKiss was born.

Cheeky, sexy, irreverent but environmentally aware. Made in France is a big part of TheFrenchKiss spirit. Everything – from the design to the conception including the silk-screening – is made by the sea, in the Vendée region. And all the materials (linen, cotton and bamboo fibers) are fair trade, vegetal/natural and sweatshop free.

On TheFrenchKiss website, you'll find t-shirts, cute little white shorties and they even manage to make vests glamorous again.

Dirty, sexy and friendly too, TheFrenchKiss has partnered with Le Bonbon London for the upcoming party at Number 90 this Friday. So come, have a drink, Kiss 'til it makes you thirsty, have another drink and dance like there is no tomorrow.

Oh and before we forget, because we like you so much, here's a free delivery code to share the French Kiss on Instagram: #tonguesout!